

Oesophageal Cancer

When you are receiving Best Supportive Care

Potential symptoms and what to do about them.

You have been given a diagnosis of oesophageal cancer (cancer of your gullet). Currently you are not receiving any treatment for your cancer. Sometimes the most difficult thing is knowing who to contact for help should you develop symptoms from your cancer. This information leaflet is to help you to contact the right person

Your care team or clinical nurse specialist may have already discussed some of these symptoms with you.

This list is not exhaustive therefore if you develop any symptoms not listed you could discuss this with your GP or clinical nurse specialist. Some patients may already be under the care of the specialist palliative care team or their local hospice. For these patients you may want to contact them directly rather than the GP.

Equally if you feel your symptoms warrant emergency advice or attention, please use the NHS 111 service or 999 if warranted.

Potential Symptoms	What to do/Who to contact:
Dysphagia (Difficulty swallowing)	If you experience difficulties in swallowing, or food is sticking, it maybe that the cancer in your gullet is preventing food and drink going down properly. If this occurs patients should be referred back to their Clinical Nurse Specialist for assessment and consideration for Oesophageal stenting (a wire mesh tube placed inside the gullet to allow food and drink to pass down). This is not an operation and is done in the endoscopy department of your local hospital. If you are worried about this contact your Clinical Nurse Specialist .
Weight Loss	Some weight loss can be part of the disease process. Weight loss may occur even if there are no changes in the amount of food you eat. If you are concerned advice can be obtained from the Macmillan Specialist Dietitian . They can be accessed via your District Nurse, GP or Clinical Nurse Specialist Team .
Pain	Some patients worry about pain. Not all cancer patients will experience pain. However if pain is a problem for you, then your GP will be able to assist you with this. Your GP may also ask for the Specialist Palliative Care Team to see you as they can also be helpful in the management of pain and can see you in your own home.
Weakness	Weakness is something that cancer patients will experience at some point. This can be a natural part of the cancer process. However, if this is effecting your ability to function then please see your GP or discuss with your District Nurse . If the weakness is having an effect on your day to day ability to manage you may require additional help and your GP and District Nurse can refer you on to appropriate community services to help you.
Nausea	Nausea can be an unpleasant symptom. If this is troubling you then please see your GP . Your GP will be able to assist you with this. Your GP may also ask for the Specialist Palliative Care Team to see you as they can also be helpful in the management of nausea and can see you in your own home.
Vomiting	Vomiting is not a pleasant experience and needs to be addressed as soon as possible. If you are vomiting after eating it may be a problem with food passing down your gullet. If this happens please contact your Clinical Nurse Specialist . Your Clinical Nurse Specialist will assess if a Stent is required (a wire mesh tube placed inside the gullet to allow food and drink to pass down). This is not an operation and is done in the endoscopy department of your local hospital. If you are vomiting for other reasons your GP will be able to assess this and prescribe appropriate medication to help or your GP may also ask for the Specialist Palliative Care Team to see you as they can also be helpful in the management of vomiting and can see you in your own home. If you vomit blood or brown fluid seek medical advice straight away, either via 111 or 999 and A&amp;E if vomiting blood.

Poor Appetite	Poor appetite can be a natural part of the cancer process, and a lot of patients will lose their appetite at some point during their diagnosis. Small frequent meals are best. If you have been referred to the Macmillan Specialist Dietitian you can discuss this with them. Your Macmillan Specialist Dietitian following an assessment may also be able to recommend special supplement drinks to take in-between your meals. For some patients in extreme cases certain medications can help and your GP will be best placed to advise or he/she may refer you to the Specialist Palliative Care Team for advice
Anaemia (low blood count)	Anaemia can make you feel more tired than usual, pale, washed out, and also breathless. Anaemia can occur for many reasons in cancer patients. It could be related to diet. Also patients who have oesophageal cancer can experience bleeding from their tumour. This may not be enough blood loss for you to notice but a small amount of blood loss over a period of time can lead to Anaemia. If you feel any of these symptoms please see your GP as he can assess for Anaemia with a simple blood test. Some patients may require a blood transfusion/Iron Infusion to help with their symptoms and your GP will discuss this with your hospital team if this is required. If anaemia is an ongoing issue then you GP can liaise with your Clinical Nurse Specialist about other options. If you notice black stools and you are not on iron tablets please contact your Clinic Nurse Specialist in hours Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm.  (Outside of these hours or if you feel unwell along with black stools please contact 111 or present to A &amp; E)
Emotional Distress	A cancer diagnosis is a difficult time for both yourself and your family. If you and your family are having difficulties coming to terms with what is currently happening and feel you need extra help and support then you can discuss this with your District Nurse, GP or your Clinical Nurses Specialist. It maybe that they can refer you on to our Counselling Service or the Specialist Palliative Care Team who have services to help with these issues.

There may be other symptoms not listed here. If you experience any other symptoms that concern you, please contact your GP or Clinical Nurse Specialist to discuss further.
